THE EXPERIENCE

Where Earth Becomes a Woven Masterpiece

ENGLISH

Pallay Punchu — meaning 'woven poncho' in Quechua — is Cusco's most dramatic secret. The third Rainbow Mountain in the region, its near-vertical walls of cyan, magenta, and crimson rise like the pleats of a giant Andean textile, carved by millions of years of geological artistry.

Discovered during the Covid-19 lockdown, Pallay Punchu remains blissfully uncrowded. You'll pass the sapphire blue Lagoon of Langui on the drive out, then hike two hours through high Andean pastures alongside llamas and alpacas before reaching the summit at 4,730m.

From the top, walk the mountain's perfect sharp ridge lines for the most dramatic photos of any Rainbow Mountain in Peru. Bring a traditional Andean poncho — your guide will arrange one — for the iconic shot of a lifetime.

ESPAÑOL

Pallay Punchu — 'poncho tejido' en quechua — es el secreto más dramático del Cusco. La tercera Montaña de Colores de la región, sus paredes casi verticales de cian, magenta y carmesí se elevan como los pliegues de un textil andino gigante, esculpido por millones de años de arte geológico.

Descubierta durante el Covid-19, Pallay Punchu permanece sin multitudes. Pasarás junto a la laguna azul de Langui y luego caminarás dos horas por pastizales altoandinos antes de alcanzar la cumbre a 4,730m. Desde arriba, camina por las perfectas líneas del filo de la montaña para las fotos más dramáticas de cualquier Montaña de Colores en el Perú.

DAY 01

Cusco → Cusipata · Sicuani · Laguna Langui · Layo · Pallay Punchu ★ → Cusco

ENGLISH — The Mountain Woven by the Earth

Your adventure begins with an early pickup from your hotel and a 4-hour scenic drive southeast from Cusco, passing through the altiplano towards the Canas province. En route, you'll stop for breakfast before pausing at the beautiful Blue Lagoon of Langui — a sapphire mirror set in gold-tinted grasslands at 4,200m.

From the town of Layo, your trek begins. A steady 1 to 2-hour hike through high Andean pastures leads you through a landscape of staggering scale — llamas and alpacas graze freely, red mountains flank your path, and the air thins as you rise above 4,500m.

At Pallay Punchu's summit (4,730m), the scene is unlike any other Rainbow Mountain: near-vertical walls of geological strata — magenta, cyan, russet and cream — rise like the pleats of a woven Andean poncho. You can walk the razor edges for close-up views. After box lunch in the open Andes, return to Cusco by private transport.

ESPAÑOL — La Montaña Tejida por la Tierra

Su aventura comienza con el recojo temprano desde su hotel y un viaje panorámico hacia la provincia de Canas. En el camino, disfrutará de un desayuno y una breve parada en la hermosa Laguna de Langui, rodeada por los paisajes del altiplano andino. Desde el poblado de Layo, iniciará una caminata de aproximadamente 1 a 2 horas a través de extensos pastizales andinos, donde podrá observar llamas y alpacas en un entorno natural único.

Al llegar a la cima de Pallay Punchu (4,730 m), será recompensado con impresionantes vistas de sus coloridas formaciones geológicas, cuyas franjas multicolores recuerdan los pliegues de un tradicional poncho andino.

Tras disfrutar de un almuerzo tipo box lunch rodeado de espectaculares paisajes, retornará a Cusco en transporte privado.
