THE EXPERIENCE

Where Colors Paint the Andes

ENGLISH

Near Cusco lies one of the planet's most extraordinary natural wonders — Vinicunca, the Mountain of Seven Colors, and the otherworldly Red Valley beside it.

Our one-day journey takes you through remote high-altitude Andean landscapes, isolated communities of the Vilcanota range, and breathtaking geological formations painted by millions of years of mineral deposits.

Along the way, the sacred Ausangate peak (6,372m / 20,905ft) watches over you — the highest mountain in the Cusco region and a living deity for Andean people.

ESPAÑOL

Cerca del Cusco se alza una de las maravillas naturales más extraordinarias del planeta — Vinicunca, la Montaña de Siete Colores, y el surreal Valle Rojo a su lado.

Nuestro recorrido de un día te lleva por paisajes andinos de gran altitud, comunidades aisladas de la cordillera de Vilcanota y formaciones geológicas únicas pintadas por millones de años de depósitos minerales.

En el camino, el sagrado pico Ausangate (6,372m / 20,905ft) te acompaña — la montaña más alta de la región del Cusco y deidad viva para el pueblo andino.

DAY 01

Cusco → Cusipata · Llactoc · Rainbow Mtn · Red Valley · Cusco

ENGLISH — A Day of Color, Altitude & Andean Wonder

Our epic adventure starts at 4:00 am with hotel pickup and a 3-hour drive south through the Sacred Valley. Blankets are provided for the early ride — expect picturesque Andean towns, Inca agricultural terraces, and herds of llamas along the way. We stop for a hearty continental breakfast before reaching the trailhead at Llactoc (4,630m / 15,190ft).

From Llactoc, the trail winds through remote Andean communities where locals wear handmade textiles and live as their ancestors did for centuries. The sacred Ausangate (6,372m) dominates the horizon — a living deity for the Andean people. After 1.5 hours of ascent, the jaw-dropping Rainbow Mountain (5,100m) reveals itself: seven bands of color carved by millions of years of mineral deposits. Spend 30–60 minutes at the summit.

We then make our way to the mystical Red Valley (5,050m) — another 30 minutes and a landscape from another world. After the descent, board transport to Cusipata for a buffet lunch before returning to Cusco.

ESPAÑOL — Un Día de Color, Altitud y Maravilla Andina

La aventura comienza con el recojo temprano desde su hotel y un viaje panorámico hacia el sur de Cusco. Tras disfrutar de un desayuno, iniciaremos la caminata desde Llactoc, rodeados de impresionantes paisajes andinos y vistas del majestuoso nevado Ausangate.

Después de aproximadamente 1 hora y media de ascenso, llegaremos a la famosa Montaña de Colores (Vinicunca), donde podrá admirar sus sorprendentes franjas multicolores. La experiencia continúa con una visita al espectacular Valle Rojo, uno de los paisajes más singulares de los Andes.

Finalmente, disfrutará de un almuerzo buffet antes de retornar a la ciudad de Cusco.
